A NEW SEASON AND NEW DAY

We hope this new year has brought good blessings your way. We know though that COVID has brought some trials and heartache to some. But we know that our hope is not in this world but in the One who holds this world. Paul says in Philippians 3:13-14, "Brothers, I do not count myself to have attained, but this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind and reaching forward to those things which are ahead, I press toward the goal to the prize of the calling of God in Christ Jesus."

It's hard to get back up on the saddle sometimes and press on when we feel pain and hurt. Our girls are a great testimony to that. We brought the girls into our 4 different homes we have. These girls came with a lot of hurt, pain, and a past they didn't know how to forget. They were scared of what the future held for them. But now, by the Grace of God, they have been able to go to school, eat as much as they want, learn about the many things they can do in the future. I tell them that with God and a focused mind, you can do whatever God puts in your heart to do. Some want to become a pharmacist. One of our girls wants to be a flight attendant. A few of them want to become teachers. It is amazing what God can do if you allow Him to pick up the broken pieces to use you. I was reading about brokenness a few months ago and God reminded me of something that I came across. I hold true to it and teach the girls this.

If you watch a child color, they don't just use the crayons that look perfect. They use the broken pieces, the ones that are tattered and torn, and the ones that are dull. They don't throw them away. In the same way, God uses us still. He uses our brokenness and our dull, tattered and torn pieces. Why? Because broken crayons still color. Much love and many blessings to you.
